D25.8 cache: small pockets of very fast memory used to help speed up the system. Ideally, it stores the things the system refers to lots. If it does, this is a hit and if the system looks for something not found in cache, this is a miss and the system must go down a level in the memory hierarchy to find it which slows it down.

(